CHARLES KESLER is the Dengler-Dykema Distinguished Professor of Government at Claremont McKenna College and Editor of the Claremont Review of Books. He received his B.A. in Social Studies and his M.A. and Ph.D. in Government from Harvard University. He is the recipient of the prestigious 2018 Bradley Prize.

Dr. Kesler is the author of I Am the Change: Barack Obama and the Crisis of Liberalism; the editor of Saving the Revolution: The Federalist Papers and the American Founding; and co-editor, with William F. Buckley, Jr., of Keeping the Tablets: Modern American Conservative Thought. He has written extensively on American constitutionalism and political thought, and his edition of The Federalist Papers is the best-selling edition in the country.

Dr. Kesler will join Bucknell faculty members for a critical reconsideration of the Lyndon B. Johnson administration's efforts to transform American society, economy, and polity.
